

WHEN THE ENEMY STRIKES

When the enemy strikes, it seems that there is nowhere possible to turn. There is no one to turn to. You feel trapped and defeated. What I have found out is that when the enemy strikes, God is trying to tell you something. Every now and then, sometimes we stray away from God and He has to allow some things to transpire to get our attention.

When I first wrote this story, I had experienced some deep distractions that caused me to stray or even rebel against what I know that God has ordained me to do. How many times have I pulled away from God and then wondered why? Why is this happening? Why is that happening? Why is this going on? Why is that going on? When deep inside, I know why. It's going on because I have allowed some things to go on in my life that God is not pleased with. I have allowed some things to consume my mind instead of having the mind of Christ. So, what do I do? How do I get back into God's good graces?

Here is the answer. When you pray, be real about it. Acknowledge God in all of His splendor. Acknowledge Him for everything He is in your life. Acknowledge Him for who He is. He is the Great I Am and there is nothing too hard for Him. After you acknowledge Him, stop and listen. Listen to what He speaks into your spirit. Sometimes, we have not because we ask not. God is a good God and He's worthy to be praised! He's good in every single thing that He does. Even when it appears that He's done nothing, He's doing something right at that very moment. Actually, He is doing something in me right this very minute because I was going to write a new story, but a small still voice told me to leave this story posted a little while longer.

When the enemy strikes, He tries to trap you. He tries to trick you into thinking that there is no way you can get out of the slump that you're in. He seeks to devour you and to weaken you even in the strength that God has so freely given you. God is your strength. Through Christ, all things are possible. Didn't you know? There is nothing too hard for God. Even in loneliness. When you feel like you are alone, but you have a house full of people, God will fill that void. He is omnipotent and He is almighty. He has all power in His Hands!

No matter how the enemy strikes, never let Him trick you into thinking that God is not walking with you. Always remember that God is walking with you constantly, persistently, continually, and forever.

Until next time...
